Southern Notes.

There are but five ex-Governors of Kentucky now living. They are Archie Dixon, Beriah Magoffin, Jas. F. Robinson, Thos. E. Bramlette, and John W. Stevenson, who is one of the Senators in Congress.

An immigration wagon passed through Dallas, Texas, the other day, with fifty-three yoke of oxen hitched to it. The team was driven by eight men.

During the last thirty days Mobile has had six fires, five of which are supposed to have been incendiary. The amount of insurance lost by the fires is $83,160.

On Friday the annual burning of the State bonds took place at Frankfort, Kentucky. Bonds amounting to $469,000 and $25,975 in coupons, paid within the past year, were burned by the Attorney General, Treasurer and Register of the Land Office, upon whom the law devolves this duty.

The New England Freedmen's Aid Society has voted to wind up its affairs. Since April, 1864, the society has received and expended over $350,000, and has supported over seventy teachers among the colored people of the South.

St. Louis is now engaged in a praiseworthy attempt to establish a direct trade with Brazil. We are pleased to learn that New Orleans is to be made the point of transfer between the river and the ocean steamers. The ships of the line are to be built near St. Louis, of Missouri iron.

Raleigh Crescent: We published in yesterday's issue the sudden death of Miss Maggie Miller, a beautiful and accomplished lady from South Carolina, who died in Salisbury last Saturday night. We regret to learn this morning that a son of Mr. J. M. McCorkle of that place, a very promising and talented young man, was at Hickory Tavern when he heard of Miss Miller's death, and he pulled out a pistol and shot himself. The young lady was his affianced. We are glad to know that young McCorkle did not succeed in taking his life.

The Port Royal Commercial, noticing the adjournment of the body claiming to be the Legislature of South Carolina, paints the following interesting picture: "Our statesmen have returned to their 'dear constituents.' The poor bare-legged boys who used to pick oysters and tote 'taters,' have bloomed into broad-cloth coats, diamond studs, silk hats, and patent-leather boots; while the old-time plow muly, which three or four years ago brought all hands to 'Befort,' gives place to a fast nag and a red-wheeled trotting wagon: "All on $600 a year."

NOON SCRAPS.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator West presented a memorial from the citizens of Alexandria, Louisiana, for the construction of a breakwater in Red River at Alexandria, Referred to Commerce Committee.

BOSTON, April 1.—A large number of the leading merchants have signed a call for an anti-inflation meeting in Faneuil Hall on Saturday evening next.

MEMPHIS, April 1.—Two young men of this city hold a tenth, and a club of forty hold a fifth of the ticket which drew the capital prize in the Louisville Library drawing.

PROVIDENCE, March 31.—Proceedings in bankruptcy against A. & W. Sprague, manufacturing company, were instituted to-day by the National Bank of Commerce, and citations were issued but are not yet served on the defendants. The announcement of the proceeding this morning caused intense excitement among business men all day, and extraordinary efforts were made to induce a suspension or discontinuance of proceedings. A call for a meeting of the stockholders of the bank to request the directors to suspend action.

BURLINGTON, April 1.—The Decrature county, Iowa, court house is burned, with the records.

FOREIGN DOTS.

BAYONNE, April 1.—The Carlists assert that the movement of Serranno against the Royalists before Bilbao has entirely failed, and there was fighting between the 28th and 30th March.

MADRID, April 1.—It is reported that the Carlist Cader Rodica was seriously wounded in one of the recent engagements before Bilbao.

BERLIN, April 1.—Peter Andrew Hausen, a German astronomer, is dead.

LONDON, April 1.—The Times acknowledges the existence of a financial panic in London, and attributes it to the effect of those with which New York and Vienna have been visited, combined with the depressing influence of the Indian famine. It says the check to trade is probably as severe as in any former instance.

MADRID, April 1.—Troops to the number of 15,000 are on their way to reinforce Marshal Serrano. It is reported the Carlist General Ollo has been killed. An attack on Abinto will be made on Tuesday or Wednesday.

GOTHAM

Criminal Carelessness of John McClellan.

More Trouble Anticipated With the Erie Strikers.

[By Telegraph to the Constitution.]

NEW YORK, April 1.—The coroners jury in Jersey City brought in a verdict of criminal carelessness against John McClellan, telegraph operator by which a collision was caused at Point of Rocks on the Pennsylvania Railroad Saturday evening by which two men were killed. McClellan has been committed to await trial.

A dispatch from Susquehanna Depot says: After the men were paid off yesterday evening 1,800 of them, who had been discharged, paraded the streets, headed by a band. A meeting was subsequently held, at which it was resolved that if the company wished to employ them it be in a body.

Vice President Clark addressed them, stating that the company was willing to re-employ some of them if they were willing to abide by the rules. The strikers listened with apparent indifference.

It is stated that if the men do not go to work to-day the shops will be closed.

The soldiers are anxiously awaiting order to go home. The men of the First Regiment, who are mostly leading business men in Philadelphia, are especially anxious to get away, as business needs their attention.

The Diarrio of Havana, whose editor was Intendente of that city during the former rule of Gen. Concha, as Captain-General, has recently published editorials, pointing out among the special advantages to the general good to the Island that would follow the restoration of peace, owing to relations believed to exist between the editor and Captain-General Concha. The articles are thought to be inspired by the Spanish party, and that their object is to prepare the people of the Island for the manifesto of the Hespano Cubans demanding accommodation between the so-called bigotists and the Insurgents, to be inaugurated by a temporary cessation of hostilities and to be followed by a formal treaty of peace.

The bases of the treaty are made known and include a pledge that the island shall remain united to the crown of Spain, that the people shall elect representatives to the Cortes, that slavery shall only be interfered with by consent of the owners, and in case emancipation should be decreed, then owners of slaves are to be indemnified, etc.

Gold opened at 113⅛.

SUSQUEHANNA DEPOT, April 1.—There are about eight hundred troops here. A renewal of the trouble is apprehended upon their withdrawal. No violence or disturbances are reported, and everything is quiet. The strikers cling together and remain firm, and those whom the company intends employing will go to work in the shops to-day.

PURSUANT to a Decree in Chancery, in Floyd Superior Court, the undersigned have been appointed Commissioners to receive sealed proposals until the 1st day of May next, for that valuable property in the city of Rome, in said State and county, known as the more particularly described as follows:

The property of the Rome Iron Manufacturing Company consists of the Rolling Mill Building 200x140 feet, well finished and substantially built with heavy truss roof. A train of 18 inch Puddle and Bar Rolls, and 9 inch Guide Mill. Two Horizontal Engines of 120 horse-power each, to drive Rolls; two (2) heavy steam Shears; Rolls and Saw for making light T Rail; twenty Nail Machines and one Spike machine—also one Railroad Spike Machine—all with counter shafting and belting complete to run the same. One Beam Engine of 120 horse-power to run Nail and Spike Machines; one 72 inch Demphill Fan Rock and Ore Crusher; Furnace for heating Nail Plate, and six large Grind; and Bead Stones substantially set on Iron Frames; three Heating Furnaces; three Pudding Furnaces, (two double and one single;) one 30 ton Track Scale, with side track in the mill; twelve Cylinder Boilers, 30 feet long, and a battery of two Flue Boilers, 42 inches diameter, 30 feet long—two 16 inch flues supply the steam power. The Cylinder Boilers being placed over the Heating and Puddling Furnaces use the waste heat from the furnaces for generating steam. Also, one Pumping Engine and Wrought Iron Tank for supplying the mill with water.

The whole mill is most complete in its arrangements for receiving, and manufacturing and shipping materials, being probably one of the best arranged mills in the States. The mill is in excellent order, and in full operation; possesses unlimited facilities for getting Coal and Pig and Scrap Iron cheaply, and has a cash market for its entire products. It has a Capacity of 125 Kegs of Nails per day.

Capacity of 3 Tons of Spikes per day.
Capacity of 12 Tons Bar Iron per day.

Pig Iron can be purchased for $30 00 per ton; Wrought Scrap from $25 to $30. A force of skilled workmen—old hands—are operating the Mill.

Painless Opium Antidote"

Is a perfect and painless cure for
THE HABITUAL USE OF OPIUM,
in any of its forms, whether as
MORPHINE,
LAUDANUM,
ELIXER, or
GUM OPIUM.

It Positively Produces a Permanent Cure.

IT is strange yet true, that as a rule it is the brightest intellects, the best members of society that become adicted to this diseased appetite. A habit which makes them slaves, beclouds their minds, ruins their dispositions, and gives them in their more natural moments a hatred of self as well as a feeling that everybody despises them—to such an extent that society has no charms. But thanks to the Giver of all good this, morbid, terrible habit, and degraded condition, as well as all of the disire and feeling for opiates in any form is soon removed by this remarkable antidote, entirely so, and the weakened body and mind are invigorated, given renewed health until love and hope take the place of despondency and doubt. Though you may not be afflicted with the habit of using MORPHINE, LAUDANUM, or other forms of OPIUM, some friend may be, and you know it not, therefore let me ask you, in the name of suffering humanity to pass this on. By so doing you may reap the reward of those who do good. DELAY NOT.

Brevities.

"Patent separators" is the latest f r Chicago divor e lawy rs.

It is rather c ol in a San Francisco paper to advise a young man "to go West."

They must be wide, elaborately trimmed with lace frills and embroidery, and reach the ankle.

The colored speakers of New York are beginning to speak of the "white element of our population."

Advance sheets of Gould's new directory of St. Louis gives 114,000 names, and estimate the population at 473,560.

A jury in San Diego, California, the other day brought in a verdict of not guilty, with a request to the defendant to restore the sheep.

A Natchez shoemaker is engaged on a pair of shoes 14 inches long and 6 inches broad for a colored citizen of Vidalia, Louisiana.

Edwin Booth says that he shall not leave this country, and shall not cease playing until his creditors have been paid in full.

In many of the foot-hill counties skirting the sierras genuine native coffee is growing in abundance. The plant is indigenous to the soil and grows luxuriantly.

"Howdy, Aunt Maria," said a Tennessee lady to an old colored lady. "I ain't yer aunt, misses," loftily replied the aged female, "and I ain't yer uncle; I'se yer ekal!"

A London paper advertises an adult Egyptian mummy for sale. The thought of being dug up and hawked about for sale 8,000 years hence makes the cremation theory less distasteful.

Kate Field says of Isabella II. of Spain, that scion of the old Bourbon race, that "she is a great, stout, ungainly female, who needs but a dozen children and a wash-tub to be a counterfeit presentment of the typical Biddy."

The National Baptist gives the following as the epitaph on the grave of an eminent Baptist divine, and an especial authority, in casuistry, Rev Levi Philetus Dobbs, D. D.:

> Put away the steel-bowed glasses,
> That the doctor used to wear;
> He no longer needs their assis-
> Tance; he's climbed the golden stair.

The New York World contains a long correspondence describing the great overflow of the Mississippi. The river is now said to be fifty miles wide from Cairo to the Gulf and an extent of territory larger than the State of New York is under water. The richest alluvial lands on the continent are temporarily under water, and almost totally destroyed for the purpose of agriculture.

Colored silk handkerchiefs are a new whim among the would-be fashionable young ladies in New York city. Scarlet and blue appear to be the most popular colors. The handkerchiefs are made to "stick out" from the outside pockets, now the rage, which only goes to prove that they are fashionable only to show and not to use.

Sir Alexander Cockburn, the Lord Chief Justice of England, has undertaken to find out the author of "Junius." It is said that even during the late great trial of Arthur Orton, he snatched many hours to study the subject at the British Museum. A London paper remarks that the secret of "Junius" has never yet been examined by a first rate judicial intellect, and that if anybody can clear it up it is the Lord Chief Justice. "One of the most accomplished men of the day, as well as one of the greatest Judges, he is richly equipped both with the requisite knowledge and the power of weighing evidence."

The first line of stages in the United States was established soon after the close of the Revolutionary War by Captain Levi Pease, of Boston, and Mr. Evans, of the Indian Queen Hotel in Baltimore, and extended from Boston to Savannah. They were long bodied carriages on very low springs, having five seats and no doors, and were entered by crawling in at the front, upon your hands and knees, and proceeding in that way until you reached the seat you were expected to occupy. The celebrated Frenchman, Brissot de Warville, who afterward suffered under the guillotine, made a tour of the United States in 1787. Speaking of those carriages he said "they were admirably calculated for the country in which they were made use of," as if a better and more convenient kind could not have been used. They were at least as pleasant as the public conveyances of France at that time and for many years after. Handsome and convenient diligences did not find their way into France to any extent until after the battle of Waterloo, when the French began to adopt English fashions.

☞ Senator Schurz, it is stated, will resign his seat at the end of the present session of Congress, and return to St. Louis to edit the Westliche Post.

☞ They are discussing the capital punishment question in the Illinois Legislature, and a majority report from a special committee has been submitted in the Senate in favor of its abolition.

☞ A Washington letter says Mr. Sumner's house will probably be purchased as an addition to the Arlington Hotel. The owner of the hotel has offered $30,000 for it, and it is thought to be a fair price.

☞ Colonel Tom Scott is now in the West, attending to his railroad business there. It is stated that he has abandoned the plan of uniting the Atlantic and Pacific Road and the Texas and Pacific, and will confine himself to pushing the fortunes of the latter great enterprise.

☞ Mrs Ward, of Greenville, still holds out. The crusaders attempted a flank movement the other day by asking a Knoxville house to recall a stock of liquors, which they supposed Mrs. Ward was selling on commission. The Knoxville firm, however, replied that they had no claim upon the liquors in question; and Betsey Ward's flag triumphantly waves in the face of the beseiging foe.

☞ But few more painful and pitiful stories have been told than that which comes from Richmond, concerning the arrest of the Treasurer of Virginia on charges of official delinquency. Colonel Joseph Mayo, the Treasurer, bears a name long honored throughout Virginia, and comes of a family which has contributed many sons to the service of the Commonwealth.

John B. Gordon and the Vice-Presidency.

IN THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION of the 29th, we see it stated that Judge Lochrane has just returned from Washington and says the idea of running Senator Gordon for Vice-President in 1876 with a leading Northern Democrat is being entertained and endorsed by Northern and Western men.

Senator Gordon—the coming man of the South—the great moral statesman—sustaining a record not tarnished by affiliation with filthy rings, and always exhibiting a marked fidelity to the cause of truth and right—if his name were placed on a ticket with an honest Democrat—would hardly fail to inspire the confidence and secure the vote of the honest masses and reach the position for which he would prove himself eminenty fitted.—Calhoun Times.

☞ The bridge over the Kentucky River on the Southern Railroad from Cincinnati to Chattanooga, will be the highest on the continent. It is 275 feet above low water, and has a span of 1,238 feet. The towers, erected by John A. Roebling, years ago, cost $100,000, and rise 865 feet above low water. Nine bids have been made to construct the bridge.

☞ Philadelphia is about to ship fourteen locomotives to Odessa, Russia. The freight is $1,300 per locomotive. The English have long enjoyed nearly a monopoly of Russian railway orders, but now they are compelled to bid against American, German and Belgian manufacturers. Russia is preparing to build many railroads in the Southern part of her vast domains, and large drafts upon American machine shops may be expected.

The Overflow of the Mississippi.

A recent letter written in the cabin of a Mississippi steamer gives a vivid description of the overflow below Vicksburg. There is much in it that is appalling. It is hard to realize that an area of country as great as the State of New York and the scene of the most productive agricultural industry in the country is covered with a depth of water sufficient to drown any living thing that remains upon it, and that men must desert their homes to avoid the fate of the animals, which either perish in the waters or starve upon barren knolls, which are their only refuge from drowning. But this is the actual condition of many hundreds of miles of country along the Mississippi. Whether such destruction can be avoided by any means is yet an unsolved problem of science.

Drawing Room Street Cars.

The New York Legislature has just chartered the Metropolitan Drawing Room Car Company. This company proposes to build elegant cars to run on any road in New York city that wants them. The fare on such cars will be ten cents—the track and motive power taking one-half, and the company the extra five cents.

If the colored man and brother would be content with seats in the five-cent cars, the drawing-room cars might become a very popular and profitable feature of street railroads in Southern cities. But Sambo often feels wealthy, especially when he has one of Afric's daughters on his arm, and in that condition he would be apt to scorn a seat in any car but the finest on the line. But perhaps Colonel Adair and his shrewd associate managers can utilize the novelty in a way to practically give the ladies of Atlanta pleasant seats and pleasant neighbors. We charge nothing, in any event, for these suggestions.

Chicago Ahead of its Eastern Rivals.

When Jay Cooke failed he owned nearly one-half of the "National Life Insurance Company of the United States"—a popular and successful organization, working under a special charter from Congress, and doing an immense business through its extensive agencies. Cooke's failure threw his stock on the market. Both New York and Philadelphia expected to secure a controlling interest in the handsome business of the Washington institution; but while the representatives of the East were negotiating, the Republic Life Insurance Company of Chicago stepped quietly in, paid the price, and took Jay Cooke's stock five days before the former knew of their intentions.

The rates and plans of the two companies being almost alike, it has been decided to remove the National to Chicago, and combine the two companies in one grand life company The new institution will start out with about 23,000 policy-holders—a business of about $58,000,000, represented by about $5,000,000 of solid assets. The management will be the same as that of the Republic, with the addition of Emerson W. Peet, of the National, as actuary.

A Blazing Coal Mine.

Ten miles from Wilkes-barre, in the heart of the best anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania, is the Empire mine, which has been fiercely burning since January. A correspondent of a New York paper recently inspected the terrible conflagration, and from his graphic account we gather the interesting particulars of its present condition. The descent to the mine is by a drift that gradually leads down to a point three hundred feet below the surface of the mountain slope. As the visiting party came in sight of the mass of hissing, crackling flames they could compare it to nothing else than the old-time popular notion of the place that Satan governs. The fire covers a large area, and in the awful darkness, it is both appalling and indescribably beautiful. The noxious gasses produce the softest and richest combinations of colors, and the heated center of the fire looks like an immense sea of glittering gold.

Five hundred and twenty-eight men, working in gangs, and relieving each other frequently, are engaged in fighting the king of those subterranean realms. Large iron pipes bring into the mine volumes of water, which are, at a certain point, divided into pipes of smaller capacity. To each of the smaller pipes are connected pieces of hose. With these hose the men attack the fire at the edges, in the apparently hopeless endeavor of extinguishing it inch by inch.

The capital of the wealthy company that owns the burning mine is $10,000,000; but the fire is feeding on their stock, their magnificent store of black diamonds. It must, therefore, be extinguished. And this is costly work. Up to the first day of April the company had expended $110,880 in quenching the flames, and they have lost four times that amount in coal which, had the fire not broken out, the miners would have taken from the earth. If the fire lasts a year—and it probably will—the company's actual loss will exceed a million and a half of dollars.

Supreme Court Decisions.

The case of Park & Iverson vs. the Piedmont & Arlington Life Insurance Company involves an important ruling upon the law of libel. Where the language claimed libelous is proved true the jury must find for the defendants; otherwise for the plaintiffs.

Our paper this morning contains a batch of Supreme Court decisions.

Telegraphic.

Ex Governor Hebert, of Louisiana, made a strong speech before the Congressional Committee yesterday urging the government to make the improvement of the Mississippi river a national work.

The Indiana Germans are migrating to a cheaper liquor license country.

☞ Female suffrage appears to work very well where it has been thoroughly tested. General Edward Lee, who was acting Governor of Wyoming Territory when suffrage was granted to the women, delivered a lecture at Boston the other evening on its workings He declares that no domestic jars have occurred, even when in one case a husband and wife were rival candidates for the same office, the one on the Democratic, the other on the Republican ticket. The women usually vote for the best candidates, and cannot be bribed, and the whole situation is improved.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Merrimon, from the committee on Claims, reported a bill referring the cotton claims of the heirs of Stephen A. Douglas to the Court of Claims. Passed.

The California Legislature, by joint resolution, asks Congress to place the unsold lands granted to railroads from Missouri to the Pacific to the disposal of pre-emptionist settlers.

The Senate devoted most of its session upon the third section of the finance bill.

The committee reported in favor of authoring the organization of national banks in States and Territories having a less population than New York, upon a basis of wealth and population until each State and Territory has an amount equal to the proportion issued to New York.

An amendment to insert Pennsylvania in lieu of New York, which would increase the National Bank circulation about $124,000,000, was rejected by yeas 25, nays 26. An amendment to reduce the volume of fractional currency to forty million dollars was also defeated. The free banking amendment was under discussion at the hour of adjournment.

The Agricultural Committee of the House will report a bill authorizing the Commissioner of Agriculture to collect specimens of wood from all parts of the country for a museum.

Admiral Porter's friends more confident.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Sawyer, is before the Committee of Ways and Means, upon the Sanborn contract.

Debt Statement—Decrease two and one-eighth millions; in the Treasury eighty-six and one-eighth millions; currency four and one-half millions.

The memorial of the South Carolina Tax payers, as well as that of their opponents, being now before the Judiciary Committee of Congress, it is expected that the whole matter will be considered on Friday.

The Star of this evening says that thoughtful members of Congress, of both parties express themselves greatly impressed by the representations of the delegation as to the distressed condition of the tax-payers of South Carolina, and there is no doubt the committee will give the matter attentive consideration to see if Congressional action can be constitutionally applied for their relief.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Gov. Hebert and Prof Forshey were, by invitation, to-day, before the House select committee on levees Gov Herbert, after alluding to the origin of levees in Louisiana under Spanish dominion and tracing their history down to the present time, made an elaborate argument upon the absolute necessity of the general government, assuming the control and expense of all improvements upon the Mississippi river, of which he considered those levees the most important. He referred to his reports of 846 and 1847, in which he opposed cut offs, and advocated a combination of levees and outlets for the permanent protection and reclamation of the alluvial lands of the Mississippi Valley. Gov. Herbert concluded by suggesting the appointment of a mixed commission of civil and army engineers, to report upon a fixed and permanent plan at the next session of this Congress.

THE PILGRIM BOAT

FROM THE GERMAN OF ADOLPH STEIN.

Translated Expressly for The Atlanta Constitution by an Atlanta Lady.

Father Aloys was now alarmed. He looked anxiously into the old man's face as if he feared to see these signs of insanity; yet, sad and gloomy as it was, there was no doubt that the words had been spoken in perfect consciousness, and the next impulse of the worthy priest was to draw back from the sullen speaker; for the fear seized him for the first time that the conviction of the country people far and near might be just, and that Lenhard knew more of the murder of Ulrich than he had admitted to the magistrates.

But the old man who had not noticed the priest's excitement continued in his gloomy, brooding way.

"Yes, indeed, my father, such sins are punished as severely as those which are really committed! Do you not think that the atonement is sufficient when one conceals, like a hidden treasure, that which would prove him innocent in the eyes of the world?"

The priest shrank still farther away. The confused words of the old man seemed to him like blasphemy, and as though they were wrung from him by the consciousness of fearful guilt. Had the voyage lasted longer, he would perhaps have been able to draw from him some explanation; but he only made the sign of the cross and murmured a prayer. By this time Marie had finished her chat with the boatman, and she turned again to her father.

The boat touched the shores of Bartholomew just at the moment when the thunders of another tempest rolled among the mountain passes. The helmsman cried aloud: "We are to have another storm" But the pilgrims, thinking only of their harvest, hastily climbed the bank, and after ranging themselves about the standard-bearer, the procession moved forward toward the little church which stood a few paces distant.

During the tumult of landing, Franz had helped his mother to a comfortable place on shore, and had then returned on board. He respectfully supported the old Franciscan as he descended from the boat; and as they passed Lenhard and his daughter, he found an opportunity to whisper unobserved to Marie, "I must speak with you, Marie, after mass; in the castle hall, if we can find no other place!"

Marie blushed and trembled. That which Franz had not noticed in his excitement had not escaped her, namely, that father Aloys had heard the whispered words, and that he was looking at her with grave and reproving eyes. Traces of displeasure had not passed away as he took his place at the head of the procession and led the way to the church.

The doors closed upon the pious band, and without the storm came nearer and passed over the spot. As before on the hill the rain fell in torrents over meadow and forest. The men who had remained behind in the boat looked anxiously over the heaving lake, and the helmsman said derisively, "We shall have to spend the night here, as I foretold. There are tempests enough lurking in the Wetterloch behind the Schonfeldspitz to last twenty four hours. We can easily starve here."

"The pilgrims must have suspected something of the kind," said another boatman with a laugh, "for they have brought baskets and packages full of good things which they will have to share with us."

But before the services had come to an end in the church, it seemed that again the boatmen were to be convicted of prophesying falsely; for, with a few peals of thunder, the storm subsided, and the clouds passed away over the mountains at the south. The boatmen shook their head over the capricious conduct of the weather, and the helmsman, holding to his first opinion, said only, "We shall see this evening."

The pilgrims now came from the church and began to scatter themselves over the green grass. Prayers were over, and all felt assured that their beloved saint would watch over their harvest. In such a joyful hope, and in spite of the gray sky and the cold damp air, they began to form themselves into merry groups. The women brought food and drink from the baskets; the men indulged in careless jests with the girls, and Father Aloys, who passed up and down among them, forced himself to leave unnoticed many things which at another time he would have felt bound to reprove. The worthy man was always indulgent, and today he was troubled by other things than the thoughtless merriment of his flock.

Without appearing to do so he looked around for Franz and Marie. Franz, he soon found with his grandmother, and Marie was sitting by the man with whom she had been talking in the boat. The old man was nowhere to be seen. During mass he had knelt more devoutly than anyone in a dark corner of the church, and as he prayed tears streamed down his cheeks. When he arose from his knees, Father Aloys noticed an expression of grave determination in his face, and he now sought an opportunity for further conversation with him. He was not to be found, and the priest became very anxious; for although it would have been easy to lose sight of anyone in such a crowd, yet it was an almost unheard of thing for the old man and his child to be separated.

As Lenhard came out of the church among the last of the pilgrims he found himself near Seppi. At sight of this man his pale face glowed with anger, and Seppi knew well that it was he that had aroused this emotion. He tried to pass, but Lenhard placed himself directly in his path, and stepping resolutely forward compelled Seppi to retreat behind the church. Lenhard followed with the same determined bearing, and soon the two men stood facing each other in an angle of the wall which opened toward the lake.

"Do you also think, Seppi, that my hand was raised against Ulrich?" said the old man, with a peculiar emphasis on the word "you."

"Are you so fond of hearing that repeated? I do think so, and shall always think so," said Seppi, scornfully.

"It is said," answered the old man slowly, and with a threatening look, "that you also owed Ulrich five thousand guilders."

Was it the tone of the old man? Was it anger or fear which caused Seppi to turn pale, and reply excitedly, "What have you to do with my affairs? If I did owe Ulrich I paid him honorably. What do you mean to imply by your words? Let me pass; I can have nothing to do with you till you are more worthy."

"There are people who saw you on the road that leads to the mill on the night that Ulrich was killed."

A moment only Seppi hesitated for an answer. "You could not have known anything about it, for you saw no one on the road; it stands written so in your testimony. But when you do meet the one who saw me on that night, seize him, and do not let him escape, for he will know more of the murder than you or I."

Seppi roughly pushed the old man aside, and joined the pilgrims on the lawn in front of the church. His step was firm, but his bearing was less confident than before; and as he muttered to himself as he went, "I would have been wiser if I had testified against him. The old fool would have been quiet enough by this time."

Lenhard remained standing as though he were stunned. He wrung his hands, and cried: "It shall rest upon me; I will bear the curse through life, leaving it behind me for my poor child. God punishes the will as the deed! And how do I know," he continued with a shudder, "that it was more than the will with him?"

With his old crushed and heart-broken manner he turned to the lake to look for his child. The boatmen knew nothing of her—nor was she to be seen among the groups of pilgrims. The old man patiently sat down to await her return; and the boatman, with more of kindness than before, showed no signs of displeasure at his presence.

Marie had meanwhile stolen away to the castle. She hastened timidly through the great hall whose walls were covered with paintings of ghostly saints, illustrating the combat of the old fisherman with the bears that formerly infested the lake. Franz, who stood bending forward in an angle of the broad winding stairs, beckoned her to come up to him; and Marie, although she made a half repelling motion with her hand, began to climb the stairs. She stood still when within a few steps of Franz and pressed her hand against her heart which was beating violently from her haste and excitement. The young man drew the girl toward him, and she yielded unresistingly to his embrace; but as he kissed her fresh lips and tenderly stroked her dark hair she burst into tears and sobbed aloud.

"We ought not to have met, Franz; I ought not to have come here, as you wished; but I have loved you so dearly—too dearly."

"Have loved me! I think you love me still," said Franz; "and, by heaven! I see no reason why we should not be united in our love. If we were married, who would have the right to part us? What more can they do when they find that their hatred and enmity can trouble us no longer?"

DECISIONS

SUPREME COURT OF GEORGIA.

Delivered in Atlanta, Tuesday, March 31, 1874.

REPORTED EXPRESSLY FOR THE CONSTITUTION, BY HENRY JACKSON, SUPREME COURT REPORTER]

Park & Iverson vs. the Piedmont and Arlington Life Insurance Company. Libel, from Muscogee.

WARNER, C. J.

This was an action brought by the plaintiffs against the defendants, to recover damages for publishing a libel of and concerning them as insurance agents for defendants. The defendants admitted its publication, and alleged in its plea that the facts stated therein were true. On the trial of the case the Court charged the jury that the language of the alleged libel was not ambiguous, or uncertain, and that the innuendoes in the plaintiffs declaration did extend the meaning of the language set out in the publication, that such being the case, the jury would not determine whether the innuendoes were true or false, but would, from the evidence, determine whether the defendant had proved that the published language was true, if so they should find for the defendant, if not, then for the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs requested the Court to charge the jury that the language charged as published in the first count of the declaration, may be construed to mean that plaintiffs embezzled the money of defendant, and it is for you to determine from the evidence whether, by this publication, the defendant intended to ascribe embezzlement to plaintiffs. The language charged as published in the second count of the declaration, may be construed to mean that plaintiffs fraudulently appropriated the money of defendant, and it is for you to determine from the evidence, whether the defendant intended to ascribe to the plaintiffs a fraudulent appropriation of money. If you believe from the evidence that plaintiffs, in good faith, claimed the amount due them for commutation which defendant refused to allow, and therefore plaintiffs did not settle with defendant, then plaintiffs cannot be truly charged with embezzlement, or fraudulently appropriating the money of defendant to their use, although on a trial afterwards it may have been determined that such commutation was not a proper charge against the defendant. The foregoing three requests to charge the jury were refused by the Court, and the plaintiffs excepted. The plaintiffs also excepted to the charge of the Court as given to the jury In our judgment there was no error in the charge of the Court to the jury on the statement of facts contained in the record. The language of the publication was neither doubtful nor ambiguous. The office of an innuendo is to explain that which is of doubtful or ambiguous meaning in the language of the publication, but cannot enlarge the meaning of words plainly expressed therein. If the plain, unambiguous words contained in the publication do not impute a criminal offense, the meaning thereof cannot be enlarged or extended, by an innuendo for that purpose; but when the language used is capable of being understood in a double sense, the one criminal, and the other innocent, the plaintiff, by making the proper allegations in his declaration, may by an innuendo, aver the meaning with which he thinks it was published, and the jury may find whether the publication was made with that meaning or not. The truth of an innuendo cannot be proved at the trial, its truth must always depend on the proof of precedent facts, which would authorize the innuendo to be made. If the precedent facts alleged in the plaintiff's declaration do not make out a cause of action against the defendant, an innuendo cannot do it. The plain unambiguous language of the publication either imputed a criminal offense to the plaintiffs, or it did not, and whether it did or not, the defendant alleged that it was true, and that was the issue to be tried. The issue to be tried was whether the language contained in the publication made by the defendant of and concerning the plaintiffs, according to the plain import and meaning thereof, was true or not, and that was the question which the Court submitted, under the evidence, in its charge to the jury. The two first requests made of the Court to charge the jury will be considered together, as both involve the same principle. By the 3,248th section of the new Code it is declared to be error for the Superior Courts to express, or intimate an opinion, as to what has, or has not been proved in its charge to the jury. The first request asked the Court to say to the jury that the language contained in the publication offered in evidence did mean to charge the plaintiffs of having embezzled the money of defendant. The second request asked the Court to say to the jury that the publication offered in evidence did mean to charge the plaintiffs with having fraudulently appropriated the money of defendant. If the language contained in the unambiguous publication may be construed to mean certain things, then it does mean them, and that is what the Court was requested to charge the jury. Whether the language of the publication did or did not charge the plaintiffs with having embezzled the defendant's money, or whether it charged them with having fraudulently appropriated the defendant's money, were questions of facts for the jury to determine from the plain unambiguous language of the publication itself, without any intimation or expression of opinion by the Court as to what offense that publication charged against the plaintiffs, or whether it charged any offense against them. Whatever charge the publication did contain, the defendant alleged to be true, and was bound to prove the truth thereof at the trial, and that was the issue between the parties. The practical effect of these two requests to charge was to require the Court to say to the jury what was the meaning and import of the language contained in the publication, instead of leaving that question to the jury whose province it was to determine it, without any intimation or expression of opinion by the Court in relation thereto. We find no error in the refusal of the Court to give in charge the two first requests of the plaintiffs set forth in the record. It is my individual opinion, that the third request to charge was properly refused by the Court in view of the facts contained in the record, because it assumes that the language of the publication did charge the plaintiffs with embezzlement or a fraudulent appropriation of the defendant's money, but the majority of the Court, are of the opinion that the third request should have been given. Inasmuch, however, as the refusal of that request did not hurt the plaintiffs, as the verdict, under the evidence, ought to have been as it is, even if that request had been given in charge, we all concur in affirming the judgment.

Let the judgment of the Court below be affirmed.

R J. Moses, M. H. Blandford, for plaintiffs in error.

Ingram & Crawford, for defendant.

Morgan Kemp et al. vs. J. M. ... Debt, from ...

WARNER, C. J.

This was an action brought by the plaintiff against the defendant on a bond. It appears from the record, by the sheriff's return, that one of the defendants was not to be found, and the plaintiffs continued their suit as to the defendants thereupon the defendants, ... filed their plea in abatement, which is of file and of record in said Court, and that the plaintiffs demurred to the same, which demurrer was sustained by the Court, and the defendants excepted. The plea in abatement contained in the record is not attached to or set forth in the bill of exceptions. What facts were alleged therein we do not know, and have no means of ascertaining except by the general statement of counsel who argued the case; consequently we cannot determine whether the Court erred in sustaining the demurrer to the plea in abatement.

Let the judgment of the Court below be affirmed.

B. B. Hinton; M. H. Blandford, by J. Russell, for plaintiffs in error.

H. L. Benning, for defendants.

Mary Johnson vs. John Quinn, administrator. Complaint, from Muscogee.

WARNER, C. J.

The plaintiff brought her action against the defendant on an account for services rendered the defendant's intestate during her life-time. On the trial of the case, the jury, under the charge of the Court, found a verdict for the defendant. A motion was made for a new trial on the ground of error in the charge of the Court to the jury, and because the verdict was contrary to the weight of the evidence, and for newly discovered evidence, which motion was overruled, and the plaintiff excepted. The Court charged the jury "that if the services had been rendered, the plaintiff had been paid for them, she could not recover." This charge of the Court was error, as we find no evidence in the record which would authorize it. The Court also charged the jury "that if plaintiff lived with deceased as his mistress, and in that relation he rendered the services for which she is now demanding payment, she was not entitled to recover." This charge of the Court was error, there being no evidence in the record to authorize it. The Court charged the jury "that the plaintiff in this action could not recover for a breach of an express contract, but on an implied one, to-wit: for the value of the services proved to have been rendered." This action was brought under the 3393 section of the Code. The bill of particulars annexed to the plaintiff's declaration sets out the terms of the contract, to-wit: That the defendant's intestate was to pay her $40 00 per month for her services as house-keeper, cook, etc., from 13th May, 18.. to 13th August, 1871—$1,580 00. According to the construction heretofore given to this section of the Code, and the Act of 1847, from which it is taken, by this Court, the plaintiff could have recovered, by proof of a special contract, to pay her $40 00 per month, set out in the bill of particulars. See new Code 3393 and decisions there cited. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the Court erred in its charge to the jury in relation to that point in the case.

Let the judgment of the Court below be reversed.

G. E. Thomas, for plaintiff in error.

R. J. Moses, for defendant.

Matrimonial.

At six o'clock yesterday evening, at the residence of the bride's father, Rev J. O. Branch officiating, Mr. V. H. Sturm, late of Louisville, Ky, was married to Mrs. Epple B Castien.

The bridal party left last evening for a tour to Richmond, Va. They will please accept our thanks for a pleasant remembrancer, and good wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.—Macon Telegraph.

Major Sturm and his beautiful bride stopped in Atlanta yesterday at the Kimball House, on their way to Richmond, and we had the pleasure of meeting the happy couple.

The bride is one of Georgia's most gifted daughters a poetess of genius, and a lady of beauty and fascination. Her exquisite little volume of poems entitled "Autumn Dreams," published by the fastidious house of Appleton & Co., of New York, has established her position in the literary world.

Major Sturm is a nephew of the famous Frenchman Victor Hugo, for whom he was named. And the bridal ring which was used by Major Sturm, is a curious and unique souvenir of the Hugo family. It is of platina and gold. It has a butterfly upon the medallion. It is the wedding ring of the mother of Victor Hugo, and also of the mother of Major Sturm, the sister of Victor Hugo. It has now done service a third time in officiating as the signet of marriage in the famous family.

Major Sturm is a gentleman of fine business and social qualities, connected with the large house of Barbouse & Bros of Louisville, Ky.

We wish the lovely bride and her fortunate spouse all the happiness and prosperity of the world.

Atlanta Fire Insurance Company.

We gave the proceedings of the meeting of stockholders and board of directors a few days since. The Board of Directors shows some of the strongest men in Atlanta. With an active, energetic, highly successful merchant as President, and with a Secretary thoroughly experienced in insurance, the company has large promise of success.

We certainly ought to have a fire insurance company in Atlanta. There never was a better opening for any company. We hope the work will be pushed vigorously forward.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

Proceedings of the Meeting Yesterday.

Address to the Police Force.

Board of Police Commissioners met at Recorder's Court room by call of the chairman. The police force was brought before them, the roll called and the rules and regulations read, after which the following address was made by the Board:

Officers and Members of the Police Force:

GENTLEMEN: The Board of Police Commissioners in taking charge of the Police Department of the city ask your kind co-operation in the discharge of their duties. We hope each and every one of you will observe the ordinances as prescribed by the Mayor and Council and the rules and regulations which may be made by the Board. for they will be strictly enforced. The oath of office, to which we have solemnly sworn, shall govern our entire action without fear, favor or affection, if any member of the force shall be found guilty of a violation of the ordinances, rules, and regulations governing the same, he must attribute it to his neglect of duty, and not to the action of the Board. While we do not propose or intend to oppress any member, we expect each and every one of you to discharge your duties fearlessly and faithfully, while in doing your duty you will meet with the approbation of this Board, and we hope to be able in a very short time, to demonstrate to all good citizens that the city of Atlanta may boast of as good and as efficient a police force as can be found in any city in the United States. When the citizens of our city retire with their families to their peaceful slumbers we wish them to feel confident that their lives and property are secure and in the hands of reliable and trustworthy men. The firm determination of this board is that the police force shall consist of men commanding the confidence of our people.

We would advise each member of the force to study the ordinance rules and regulations, for ignorance of the laws will not excuse you. By doing so you will render yourselves efficient and polite. You must always remember that you are the conservators of the peace, therefore it becomes your duty at all times, day and night, to be vigilant.

An Atlanta ... day.

Augusta has taken a deep interest in the Southern Historical Society. She has organized a branch society, Colonel W. H. Hull was elected President, and Mr. ... Secretary.

At the organization General W. S. Walker of Atlanta, made the neatest speech we have read on the subject, which we find thus reported in the Chronicle:

On motion of Major Gazaki, General W. S. Walker, of Atlanta, was called upon to address the Society.

General Walker said that ... of his little daughter begun to unfold ... he ... lost his leg. "It was shot off, my daughter," and in answer to further inquiries ... he explained the reason which induced him and his fellow countrymen to go to war. This incident had convinced him of the necessity for just such work as was contemplated in the organization of the Southern Historical Society. He felt that no pains should be spared in gathering up material which would give to our children and our children's children a clear insight into the origin, rise and progress of the Southern Confederacy.

In illustration of the fact that truth will triumph and high purposes be duly admired, he mentioned the fact that during the presentation of leading characters in a New York theater, greatly to the delight of the large audience, the man with the "inevitable cigar" appeared, and the personation was greeted with wildest applause. Next, General Robert E. Lee was as successfully personated as was possible to any man. The recognition was instant, and the applause that greeted the name and personation of the distinguished Southern General shook the building from pit to dome. There was in that fact an omen for the future—a happy omen he hoped for the whole country He for one was for the Union if we could keep it. If there was any secession in the future it would be on the part of New England. The history of Southern soldiery would be a prouder record than any other the nation could show. It would have to take Lee, Johnson, and Stonewall Jackson as exemplars of military genius, and confess that Southern soldiery was the bravest in the world.

This table at the Grand Catholic Fair next week will be in charge of Mrs. John H. Flynn. At this table there will be many rare and valuable articles, of which we name only a few.

A magnificent gold mounted sword, with belt and sash, will be balloted for, the candidates being the commissioned officers of the Atlanta volunteer companies. The officer receiving the highest number of votes will be presented with sword, belt and sash. The sword is now on exhibition at Er Lawshe's jewelry store.

A beautiful smoking service, consisting of gentleman's smoking robe, cap and slippers, with a luxurious easy chair, center-table, cigar holder, ash receiver, will be voted to the most popular director of the Young Men's Library Association. A magnificent silver water set, will also be raffled at this table. It is now on exhibition at Briscoe's jewelry store.

A very fine patent half lowdown parlor grate will also be disposed of at this table. We have never seen a finer article. It can be seen at L. B. Langford's house furnishing store. A splendid office desk, (black walnut) a ladies superb writing case, a magnificent gold headed cane, a very fine marble-top centre table, a splendid parlor stereoscope with fifty views, a beautiful baby carriage and crib, a ladies robe, two magnificent dolls, several fancy suits for children. But we would not have space in a column to enumerate even half of the many rare articles which will be on exhibition on this table. We must, however, name one other article which is both amusing and interesting, namely: a Zoetrope by which spiritualism and the mysteries of modern science will be explained This rare article will be disposed of at Mrs. Flynn's table during the Fair next week and will, no doubt, attract large crowds. We advise our readers to go and examine it.

ASK THEM?—An advertisement of a medicine, however candid and conscientious it may be, does not always carry conviction with it. The public know to their sorrow that the boastful claims put forth in behalf of many so called remedies are litterrlly "a delusion and a snare." Probably the best use therefore, that can be made of the space devoted to this notice of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to invite those who read it to inquire of the parties that have tested the curative and preventive properties of the article what they think of it. We earnestly request all doubters to ascertain from such of their friends and neighbors as have taken this standard tonic and alterative as a protection against malarious diseases, or as a cure for indigestion, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism, nervous debility, headache, low spirits, languor, biliousness, etc., what Hostetter's Bitters have done for them. There is no testimony so trustworthy as that which is the result of personal experience.

Dr. Calhoun's Liver Pills.

I AM engaged in the Manufacture of the Celebrated Family Medicine, known as the Calhoun Liver and Anti-Bilious Pills, under the supervision and assistance of Dr. Calhoun himself. This Pill has been in use for the last thirty-five years, and has taken precedence over all other Family Preparations, by all that have used them. Thousands would certify to their great value if necessary. One fact should supersede any amount of certificates, and that fact is this: Dr. Calhoun has been physician to the Fulton County Prison for over seven years, when the number of prisoners ranged from 20 to 70, laboring under all the diseases incident to this climate. With but few exceptions, they have all been treated with this Pill, and astonishing to say, during that long period not a solitary death occurred under his treatment. This fact is worth any amount of testimonials.

I am now prepared to fill orders from Druggists, Merchants and others. All orders sent me shall receive prompt attention. There is no type of FEVER, DYSPEPSIA, DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, RHEUMATISM, CHOLERA MORBUS, BILLIOUSNESS and SICK HEADACHE, or other diseases of a Southern climate, but yields readily to this preparation.

For sale by all druggists.

Price 50 cents a Box.

None genuine unless it bears the signature of N. C. Williams and picture of Dr. Calhoun.

MODE OF DRAWING.

There will be upon the stage two glass wheels, the contents of which can be seen by all the spectators. A committee of two citizens, in no way connected with the management, and of undoubted integrity, having first counted and examined, will place in the larger wheel 12,600 tickets exactly alike and having printed numbers from one to 12,600 corresponding to all the tickets sold. A similar committee, having first counted and examined, will place in tubes precisely alike the prizes which are placed in the smaller wheel. Both wheels will then be turned until their contents are thoroughly mixed. A boy under fifteen years of age, blindfolded, will then draw from the larger wheel one of the 12,600 tickets, and holding it up in full view of the spectators and auditors its number will be called by the crier appointed for this purpose, so that all present may hear. The number will then be passed to the committee of citizens, who will say whether the number has been rightly called. It will then be passed to a registrar, who will file it, and record it upon a book prepared for that purpose. A boy of similar age will then draw from the smaller wheel one of the tubes containing a prize, which will be opened and held up to the view of the spectators and auditors. The value of the real estate prize will be stated, and passed to the committee, who after inspection, will give it to another registrar to be entered. The prize thus drawn will belong to the ticket bearing the number drawn immediately before it. In this manner the process will continue, drawing first from the large wheel containing the tickets, and then from the small or prize wheel until all the tubes containing the prizes are drawn. An accurate record of the above will be kept on file, certified to by the committee of disinterested citizens officiating.

The Prizes below $300 in value are approximations, and will be determined and paid as follows: The numbers of all the Tickets sold being considered in a circle, numerically formed, and having the highest number, 12,600, and the lowest, 1, brought together, then whatever number in this circle may be by lot determined to be entitled to the Capital Prize of $25,000 will be taken as a center, on each side of which the next 300 numbers in numerical order will be counted for the $10 Prizes, thus making on each side of the Capital the 600 nearest numbers, each of which will be entitled to a Real Estate Prize of $10. All the Tickets drawing larger Prizes will be excluded, and the circle extended to include 600 on both sides of the Capital, being 300 on each side, it being the purpose of the management not to duplicate Prizes.

MONEY—All money received from sale of Tickets will be deposited in Bank immediately on receipt of remittances.

TRANSFER OF TITLES.—Within ten days after the drawing, parties putting Real Estate on the market under this Scheme, are required to make good, valid and unencumbered titles thereto to the Georgia Real Estate and Immigration Company—said Company obligating themselves to transfer such title in fee simple to the party or parties who may draw such Prize of Real Estate.

Tickets can be had on application, personally or by letter, to authorized agents, the managers, or
